

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

The present invention aims to provide a system that induces users to make orders for additional prints in a similar sense as making additional prints in the conventional silver-halide film photography system.

In a print service that provides print output of image data to an order from a user, in case that a repeat order is placed from said user, different charge system from that applied last time is applied based on the date of the previous order.

100-4430860